UX Designer - Location: Seattle

About This Place

This Place is a digital product design studio with offices in London and Seattle. We help businesses to define their digital strategy and realize their strategic vision through the design and development of smarter apps and online services. We're a friendly, driven team, which is passionate about all things digital and enjoy working with a series of influential global brands. We also focus some of our time on developing our own digital products.

The Role – UX Designer

We are looking for a UX Designer to work full-time as part of our Seattle team. You'll be helping to deliver innovative digital experiences for one of our global clients. If you're passionate about design and have proven experience creating intuitive digital products and services, we would love to talk to you. The role requires working closely with our UX designers, development and project management teams to research and deliver best-in-class design solutions. Experience in designing for e commerce or financial technology would be beneficial as would some UI design ability.

Key Job Tasks

- Designing a digital platform for a global brand from conception through to UX and UI design
- Involvement in workshops, research and testing sessions with stakeholders
- Assisting in presentation of work and concepts to clients and internal stakeholders
- Helping time estimation and planning of project tasks with the wider team
- Working with the UI and development teams to coordinate handoffs of design

About You

- 3-5 years' experience in a design studio environment
- Experience working individually and as part of a team
- A portfolio that demonstrates designing for both responsive web and mobile (iOS & Android)
- Can take an idea from a drawing through to detailed wireframe
- Able to create believable personas and user journeys
- Killer skills in Axure, Sketch or similar tools
- Ability to use Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator would be an advantage
- An understanding and appreciation of development processes, technologies and techniques
- Able to explore multiple options to a UX challenge to find the best solution
- Can present work clearly and communicate with clients
- Self-starter who is driven, responsible, and loves working with a tight-knit team
- Able to think both logically and creatively
- Located within commuting distance of Seattle, WA (or willing to relocate)
- Willing to travel if and when required
- Experience designing for e commerce or financial technology would be a definite benefit

APPLY AT: JOBS@THISPLACE.COM